Baseball starts Tuesday

Seven returning seniors and two returning juniors will form the nucleus of the 1983 Raider varsity baseball team, according to Coach Clabough.

Those nine will be joined by seven newcomers to the 1983 squad, and one player who had sat out last year recuperating from a knee injury.

Greg Mayberry, Tim Bennett and Kevin Mitchell, all returning seniors, provide a core of good experience on the mound for the Raiders this season. Clabough says that Mayberry and Bennett will also see time at first base this season, and Mitchell will likely see some playing time in the outfield.

Outfielder Rodney Bryant and infielders Jody Williams, M.J. House and Alan Edmonds are returning seniors who played for the Raider baseball team last year, as well.

Returning juniors include Jay Chernault (outfield) and Gary Ferguson, who played outfield last year and who may see time at short stop this season.

Tony Chandler and Jay Wingfield are both juniors on the varsity team for the first time this season.

Sophomores playing varsity for the first time this season include Phil Bollinger and Tim Austin (both outfielders), Mike Jackson (pitcher and catcher) Paul Johnson (pitcher, infield), and Tony Mann (infield).

Kevin Ferguson, a senior catcher who played in 1981 but was unable to play last season because ot a knee surgery earlier in the year, is also listed on this year's Raider roster.

The Raiders, who open at home Tuesday against Brookville, have a good, experienced pitching staff, according to the coach.

"We hope that the pitching staff will be one of our plusses this season," Clabough notes. "The seniors have all been pitching for three years, and Paul Johnson, up this year from junior varsity is a good pitcher."

Clabough alsy says he has confidence in the team's ability to get hits and score runs this season.

Raider Review

By JENNIFER INGE

Imagine having to travel all the way around school after each class period, just to get to another class, in any type of weather.

Many of our handicapped students have to do this each day.

The state policy concerning handicapped students states that these students should be offered "equal service and equal opportunities." These equal services should extend to the ease of travelling around the school building.

However, this is not the case. Handicapped students face many barriers around our school. They are unable to use the stairs, the water fountains, and the restrooms.

Courtney Andrews, special education teacher, and Shelby Huff, nurse, feel that changes need to be made in our school. These changes include adapted restrooms and water fountains, an elevator, handicapped parking, and ramps on the sidewalks leading from the parking lot.

However, the administration has made attempts to overcome the architectural barriers by careful scheduling. They try to plan schedules so that all classes will be on one floor or with the least amount of movement from floor to floor being necessary.

These problems have been taken to school board by special education teachers and parents. Mrs. Davis went to the school board when her son Mike was a freshman in high school. Davis went to a school board meeting and told them that an elevator was needed in the school because of her son "having to go around the building in all types of bad weather. She stated that "one of them laughed," but said they would discuss the possibility.

The biggest problem is making changes in the school is that of funding. Although the school board is willing to listen to recommendations, they are hindered in acting by lack of the availibility of federal grants.

4-H News

Miss Bradley's 4-H Club

Miss Bradley's 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting in February. First we said the pledge to the American flag and to the 4-H flag. Then the recreation leaders led us in the games Four Corners and King and Queen. Next the secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. The president asked if there was any old business. We talked a little about 4-H Camp. The president asked for any new business and we talked about bird houses.

The president turned the meeting over to the vice president. Mr. Sweet passed out some papers for us to look over and showed us some posters.

The meeting was then adjourned.
